ANNUAL REPORT 2016

Serving immigrant and refugee survivors of domestic violence and human trafficking

Tapestri diversity. advocacy. empowerment.

Letter from the Board Chair

Dear Tapestri supporters,

At Tapestri, we believe that no person, regardless of national origin, language, or gender, deserves to experience violence. Every day, Tapestri's 13-member staff and countless volunteers, donors, and partners work to make this vision a reality.

When I think back to when I joined Tapestri's Board of Directors five years ago, one word comes to mind – resilience. Resilience is critically important for our clients. Resilience is what gives a woman the courage to leave an abusive partner and move to a shelter. Resilience is what gives a man who has been trafficked into this country and held against his will the courage to tell the truth about his situation to law enforcement. We see so much resilience in the unaccompanied children we work with who have crossed borders alone and the men who come to us without a framework for a healthy relationship yet who come week after week to learn how to process emotions in a safe, healthy way.

I see resilience in the staff as well. Fiscal year 2016 was Tapestri's fourteenth year in operation. The organization has grown from a small project at Refugee Women's Network to a 13-person organization serving nearly a thousand clients each year. In 2016, we were able to grow our staff, adding or converting part-time to full-time positions in domestic violence casework and volunteer management.

We often receive questions about the political and economic landscape around immigration and social services. Will our funding be sufficient? Are more clients coming in? Are resources available for our clients? Despite all these questions, one thing is certain – Tapestri remains focused on and dedicated to our clients' well-being. We will continue steadfastly leading our immigrant and refugee clients from crisis to stability. Our expanded staff - with a focus on growing volunteer involvement and diversifying our funding sources - is strengthening our organizational capacity to serve immigrants and refugees leaving domestic violence and human trafficking.

We are optimistic about Tapestri's future and renew our commitment to foreign-born survivors of domestic violence and human trafficking. We invite you to stay involved and connected through our e-newsletter, our website (tapestri.org), Facebook (/Tapestrilnc), Twitter (@Tapestri_Inc), and Instagram (@Tapestri_Inc). In the meantime, we hope you enjoy this annual report's review of our 2016 accomplishments. Our name, Tapestri, symbolizes the different threads of our community uniting. You are one of those threads, and we could not be more grateful.

Sincerely yours,

Rosalie S. Collado
